

Luminous watch energy storage

What is a luminous ceramic watch?

Acting like a battery for storing light energy, this luminous material makes the ceramic cases glow blueish in the dark for more than 24 hours. Using Ceralume™, IWC Schaffhausen has manufactured its first fully luminous ceramic concept watch. Conventional white ceramic is made by mixing zirconium oxide with other metallic oxides.

Do momentum watches use luminous paint?

Momentum watches use different qualities of luminous, depending on the watch model and target price range. This means that we use a basic grade of superluminous paint on a watch costing $125 but, on a watch costing $500+, we will use a top-grade luminous.

What is a good luminous light?

A good, basic luminous. Typically, legible for 1-2 hours in the dark, after exposure to a bright light. Medium-Grade. A good blend of price and performance. Typically, legible for 2-4+ hours in the dark, after exposure to a bright light. Top-Grade. (SuperLuminova or Lumi-Brite) The best luminous.
